LGA

Councillors Bob Cook and Jim Beall spoke in support of membership of the Association highlighting that:

- Most Councils were members of this cross party politically led organisation
- The Association exerted significant influence and lobbying power and gave access to ministers
- Peer reviews were an invaluable service provided for member Councils providing an opportunity to give support and also learn from others
- The Association had reduced costs and membership fees in recent years
- The Association were an invaluable source of information providing up to date briefings, but they questioned whether the Council was making the most out of the information provided across the Council?
- The Association ran excellent leadership courses which had been attended by a number of Stockton Councillors
- The Annual Conference provided excellent networking opportunities

NEPO

Councillor Bob Cook highlighted:

- NEPO had been reviewed in recent years and now focused on a smaller number of specialist areas of procurement
- The organisation strove to encourage local and regional suppliers to tender for work and there were over 600 Stockton companies on their preferred list
- Savings achieved through joint procurement significantly outweighed the costs of membership

NEREO

Councillor Ann McCoy highlighted that:

- The LGA respect the strong voice of this non-political, regional organisation and ask the organisation what they would like them to lobby about
- The organisation plays a key role in negotiating with trade unions on behalf of all of the 12 North East Councils on the pay claim via collective bargaining. NEREO fulfils this statutory role which would need to be undertaken in another way if the Council was not a member
- The organisation are committed to national conditions of service
- Membership of the organisation allows the Council to access less expensive services

- Membership gives access to HR advice, a jobs portal and peer reviews
 - North East campaigns have been run in the past
- The Council have used NEREO to carry out a Senior Management Salary Structure Review
