The Government has set a national benchmark of 30% of students achieving five or more GCSE passes at grades A*-C including Maths and English. This is known as the National Challenge, and any school that does not reach this benchmark must take urgent action to improve performance. It is proposed that the borough's three National Challenge schools are replaced with new Academies to address this need for improvement. The decline in student numbers in north Stockton over the coming years will make it impossible to retain all three of the existing secondary schools. School budgets are based on pupil numbers and smaller schools will find it increasingly difficult to offer a wide choice of curriculum opportunities especially as the seventeen diploma lines are introduced. This is why three schools in the north Stockton area will not be viable. It is proposed that the Norton School Humanities College and Blakeston School close and are replaced with a single Academy.																	informed throughout.
